Plan PUCO Parley on Phone Rates

Officials Going To Columbus

Lay Plans To Battle Boost

Mansfield city officials will make a reconnaissance trip to Columbus Tuesday to lay plans for their fight against the Mansfield Telephone company's application for a rate increase.

City Solicitor C. J. Kalbfleisch said the officials will meet with members of the state Public Utilities commission Tuesday afternoon.

Planning to make the trip to Columbus are Kalbfleisch, Service-Safety Director Earl T. Garrison and Councilmen Nelson Swihart and Harry M. Bowman.

The trip is primarily to discuss the commission's procedure in handling an application for a telephone rate increase, Kalbfleisch said.

"It will also give us a chance to talk over the application with PUCO members," he added.

The trip is being made one day before the city council's August meeting and Kalbfleisch said a written report would be given to council at that meeting.

City council at its July meeting asked the city solicitor to investigate the procedure for filing a protest to the PUCO. Council went on record as opposing any increase in telephone rates here.

SEEKS EXPERT
The city solicitor said he would recommend to council that a rate expert be hired to work on behalf of the city.

The application for a general rate increase was filed with the PUCO by the telephone company on June 6.

The company seeks to add $136,623 to its annual revenue through the proposed rate increase, according to the PUCO.

Under the application single and four-party line residence telephones would be boosted 50 cents a month. Eight-party line phones would be increased 25 cents a month. Business phone rates would also be increased.

There have been numerous complaints that in the view of the big dividends paid to stockholders the company should improve its service rather than raise its rates.

Sees FEPC Bill Delay

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr., D., N. Y., chief sponsor of Fair Employment Practices legislation, conceded today that Congress will probably delay action on the bill until next year.

"If Congress quits work sometime in August, then we will just have to wait until January," he said. "It is simply impossible to get immediate action on the bill."

Many legislators are speculating that Congress will adjourn near the end of August or early in September.

When the bill does come up, it is certain to meet bitter opposition from southern Democrats who have termed it more objectionable than the anti-poll tax measure, another plank in President Truman's civil rights platform.

The FEPC bill, approved yesterday by the House labor committee, would forbid firms employing more than 50 workers to set up racial or religious standards for hiring or firing employees. Local governments, charitable groups and farms operating in intrastate commerce would be exempt.

Attlee Denounces Churchill's Talk

LONDON — (UP) — Prime Minister Attlee accused Winston Churchill today of giving Britain a black eye abroad out of "irresponsibility and party spite."

Replying to Churchill's conservative party speech at Wolverhampton a week ago, Attlee said his abuse of the Labor government "may be taken seriously in other countries," where he is remembered mainly as wartime prime minister.

Attlee declared: "Any government which does not contain him is always denounced as incompetent."

Name's On Tombstone, Sues Dealer

CHICAGO — (INS) — A Chicago monument dealer was the defendant today in a $40,000 damage suit because an advertising pamphlet he used allegedly contained a picture of a tombstone of a living man.

Morris Schub, 62, charged that the dealer, Philip Kornick had caused him to be subjected to "taunts and jibes of acquaintances" because the pictured tombstone allegedly bears both the names and likenesses of Schub and his late wife Lena.

Consulate Blockade Under Fire

U. S. Raps Reds For Aiding Mob

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The United States today accused Chinese communist authorities of deliberately permitting, if not fostering, a "pattern of extortion" against Americans in Shanghai.

The charge came as the State department was informed that a Chinese mob had invaded the American consular offices in Shanghai and confined staff members, including Acting Consul General Walter P. McConaughy, to their offices.

The department noted that both communist police and military authorities ignored American protests and refused to oust the mob from inside the consulate.

A department spokesman said it was clear that the communists had failed to protect the consulate or to maintain "even the semblance of what the civilized world regards as minimum standards of discipline and order."

Thirteen American consular officials and 35 Chinese employees were locked in the consulate when the mob took over. The bulk of the crowd was composed of former employees of the U. S. Navy in Shanghai, who are demanding that the United States pay them for work period subsequent to the Navy's departure from Shanghai plus bonuses.

The spokesman said that the consulate general, which is acting as agent for the Navy, has been willing for some time to make a settlement, but that he had deferred action at the request of the communist authorities.

However, this spokesman said that the consulate has now refused to negotiate "while subjected to the duress of what appears to be developing as a pattern in Shanghai."

Lie Lauds Relief Work

DAYTON — (UP) — Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations, today praised the voluntary relief work of Americans in "alleviating distress in war-stricken countries."

His praise came in a letter addressed to the local headquarters of the Christian Rural Overseas program (CROP).

CROP is the nationwide, inter-church program through which gifts are contributed for the needy overseas.

In his letter, Lie joined American government and religious leaders in urging the giving of food commodities "to lessen the acute need in other lands."

He said: "I have been noting with immense satisfaction the work that has been done by private American relief agencies in alleviating distress in war-stricken countries. Among these agencies, I have been watching the work of the Christian Rural Overseas program with special interest."

"This organization has made it possible for those who actually know the value of food — the producers themselves — to lessen the acute need in other lands."

CROP last year sent 75,000,000 pounds of bulk farm products to the needy in 22 nations.

SHOOTING SENATOR—Lt. Gov. George D. Nye fired more than a verbal blast as the Ohio Senate overrode Gov. Frank J. Lausche's veto and passed the bill removing the quail from the songbird list. He fired a popgun at Sen. Clingan Jackson, who led Senate opposition to the bill. After the bill had been passed, Nye told Sen. Jackson he had been sentenced to "Have your tail feathers shot off." ### 14 Die In DC-3 Crash

Smashes Ground Near Fort Dix

NEW YORK — (INS) — A Civil Aeronautics authority spokesman at La Guardia field said today that an Eastern Air Lines plane crashed about three miles north of the air force base at Wrightstown, N. J., and that 14 persons were reported dead.

FORT DIX, N. J. — (UP) — A commercial airplane crashed two miles from Fort Dix today. Six persons were reported killed.

An air force spokesman at Fort Dix said reports from an army military policeman on the scene identified the craft as a DC-3 Eastern airline plane.

The first report of the crash from La Guardia field, New York, said the DC-3 had crashed in the air with an army aircraft. The Fort Dix spokesman said his information did not indicate a collision between two planes.

The spokesman said his information about the reported six deaths came from the army M.P. on the scene. He added that he is awaiting return of air force personnel dispatched to investigate the crash before learning more details.

Eastern airlines in Philadelphia, some 30 miles south of Fort Dix, declined to comment on the crash. A spokesman referred all inquiries to EAL offices in New York.

At La Guardia field in New York, it was reported the plane carried 11 passengers and a crew of three. It was said to be bound from Boston to Memphis and to have left La Guardia at 9:55 A. M. (EST)

Wants Surplus Food Sold To Housewives

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Senate Agriculture Chairman Thomas (D) Okla., today urged that housewives be given a crack at the huge food surpluses held in warehouses by the government.

Thomas asked Agriculture Secretary Brannan to draft a proposal which would free the stockpiles held by the Commodity Credit corporation for sale in "deficit or high-priced areas."

Mayor, Women Hurl Charges

GARY, Ind. — (UP) — Housewives ended their picketing of brothels and handbooks today, convinced they had clamped a lid on the steel town, but the mayor said they ought to campaign against lewdness and gambling at their own swank country club.

The latter-day Carrie Nations, members of the Women's Citizens committee, stopped their picketing at 8 p. m. last night.

They claimed their two-day fight was successful.

The claim was supported by at least one prostitute.

Arrested at Indianapolis for streetwalking, the girl told Police Capt. John Sullivan she and three other prostitutes left Gary because the pickets had ruined their business.

"Times are tough because of the vice crusade," she said.

The campaign wasn't without some embarrassment to the militant pickets however.

Several housewives parading in front of a bawdy house were approached by a man who

'Bob White' Can Quit Singing

Legislature Rules Quail Is Game Bird

COLUMBUS, O. — (UP) — "Bob White" is a game bird again.

For 36 years he has whistled over the Ohio landscape, billed as a song bird—and as such protected from hunter's guns.

But the Ohio legislature yesterday put him back into the class with the pheasant and the grouse.

The legislature over-rode Gov. Frank J. Lausche's veto of the quail bill and voted it into law. Quail however, still are safe from hunters. The legislation provides that the conservation division shall propagate the bird for 10 years and during that period it can not be shot.

Another legislature will have to pass another law before the succulent meat of Ohio quail can grace dinner tables.

Governor Lausche, who personally abhors the shooting of any wild life, vetoed the bill on the ground it was designed to permit eventually the shooting of quail.

Besides, the governor informed the legislature, the conservation division can propagate quail without permission from the General assembly.

Senator Clingan Jackson (D-Mahoning) submitted the governor's arguments in appealing to the Senate to sustain Lausche's action.

But, Senator William H. Deddens (R-Cincinnati) replied, the governor was in error; the law specifically forbids possession of song birds for propagation or any other purpose.

UNFAIR TO HUNTERS
He declared it would be unfair to hunters to use their licatory fees for increasing the quail population when they had no assurance they ever could hunt the bird.

The house vote in overriding the governor's veto was 97-22; the Senate vote, 21-6. Eighty-one votes were needed in the House; 20 in the Senate.

Leut. Gov. George D. Nye, who helped push the quail bill through the legislature originally and then fought to override the governor's veto, called on Senator Jackson to arise after the Senate vote was announced.

"It is the sentence of the Senate that you have your tail feathers shot off," Nye laughed.

Thereupon the lieutenant governor produced a toy pop gun and fired it at Senator Jackson.

The legislature classified the quail as a song bird, not to be shot, in 1913 at the request of bird lovers.

Authors of the new law were Reps. Lowell Fess (R-Greene), L. P. Mooney (R-Hocking) and Guy C. Hiner (R-Starke).

Top 'Brass' Start Tour

FRANKFURT — (UP) — The three United States chiefs of staff landed at Frankfurt today on the first leg of an unprecedented peacetime tour to review the military situation in western Europe.

President Truman's plane the Independence, settled down at the Rhein-Main airport at 3:50 p. m. (8:50 a. m. EST). Aboard were Gen. Omar N. Bradley of the army, Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg of the air force, and Admiral Louis E. Denfield of the navy.

John J. McCloy, U. S. military governor who will be high commissioner in Germany after the fall elections, greeted the chiefs of the three service arms at the airport.

Almost every high American official in Germany was on hand to meet the visitors. Among them were Lt. Gen. John K. Cannon, chief of American air forces in Europe and Lt. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner, ground force commander.

In their four during the coming week, the service chiefs will hear requests for billions of dollars worth of U. S. armaments.

Herring Building Leased

Brandenburg Acquires Site

The Brandenburg Chevrolet company this morning obtained a lease for seven years on the Herring property at the northwest corner of Walnut and Second streets.

This major downtown business transaction occurred simultaneously with the retirement of Roy Herring, for 40 years an automobile dealer, whose Chrysler agency had occupied the two-story brick structure.

W. A. Brandenburg, president and manager of the Brandenburg Chevrolet company, said his firm would move into the Herring building Monday to begin immediate operation of a modern automobile paint and body department.

One of the unusual features of the enterprise will be a glass enclosed paint booth that will enable customers and passers-by to see the auto painting operation. The booth will be situated beside the display window.

On Jan. 1, 1951, Brandenburg will also occupy the quarters at the rear of 22 South Walnut street, now used by the Deluxe Cab company, and all the ground adjacent to the Herring building.

Sales, parts, and service headquarters of the Brandenburg company will remain at 140 Park avenue east where it has been situated since 1932 when W. A. Brandenburg came to Mansfield and took over the Chevrolet agency.

Brandenburg has also purchased the entire supply of Chrysler parts owned by Herring and will service Chrysler cars at the Park avenue east building.

Included in the lease is an area 180 feet by 120 feet and the building which is 105 feet by 60 feet. Brandenburg said he plans to use both floors and the basement of the building.

Brandenburg obtained the lease from Dimon Herring, 60 Western avenue.

Buys Plane For Journey Around World

RENO, Nev. — (AP) — Sam Keener, the Salem, O., "Flying Industrialist," took delivery of a used DC-4 purchased from United Air Lines here yesterday.

Keener, president of the Salem Engineering company, will use the big, 44-passenger plane on a 50,000-mile globe circling business trip to start from Salem in a few days.

In his appearance here, Keener wore his trim, blue military-style uniform that means exactly nothing except to people impressed by uniforms. Last year on his trip to Europe, Keener got all kinds of official courtesies from government people who thought his uniform and medals must represent some branch of the U. S. military.

He designed the uniform himself to impress the brass-conscious officials.

Shot To Death

COLUMBUS — (UP) — Clifton Jordan, 20, auto-theft suspect wounded early last Sunday by police, died in St. Francis hospital last night. He was shot twice in the hips.

Breezes Chase Heat

A cool air mass was moving into Ohio today—and the northern portion of the state had first call on it.

Temperatures were not expected to go above the mid-80 mark either today or tomorrow, thus bringing an end to a week of oppressive heat and humidity. Mansfield's official high yesterday was 90.

The southern part of the state was less fortunate. Temperatures there will again hit the 90's, but will drop tonight.

A pleasant week end throughout Ohio was forecast. However, the reprieve from the heat won't last long. Forecasters at Cleveland said the hot, sticky conditions of last week will return Monday to harass Ohioans.

Showers cooled off parts of Ohio yesterday, but mostly they just added to the humidity. Across the country, there were more than 75 deaths due to the heat wave. The worst-hit city was Philadelphia with 34 deaths attributed to the heat in the last three days.

WORKERS SENT HOME

There were scores of prostrations and business houses in many cities closed and sent employees home because of the sizzling heat.

In Washington, where the temperature reached 96.2, President Truman sought relief by going to his Shangri-La mountain-top hideaway in Maryland.

New York City had a sizzler, too, with a top reading of 97.6, the hottest for the date in the city's history. City officials reported that 1,700,000 persons crowded the beaches at Coney Island and Rockaway.

In Minnesota, crop experts warned that the heat had brought out hordes of army worms which were marching across fields of flax and small grain. They said the insects would be dangerous to crops unless controlled immediately.

At Salem, O., a cloudburst flooded the low areas of the city, causing water damage in some stores. This morning manhole covers were popped off in the industrial district where the storm sewers were overtaxed by the downpour.

Duble Paid $6 Weekly

Banker Bitter At Being 'Duped'

NEW YORK — (UP) — Denison Duble, silver-haired Cincinnati banker, said bitterly today that eastern policy racketeers paid him "drips and drabs" of $5 or $6 a week to rig clearing house figures which netted them an estimated $50,000,000 annually.

Duble told District Attorney Frank Hogan that he had received only $100 five or six times during the two years he was associated with the syndicate. Hogan hinted, however, that the banker's take was much higher and said he had "a good idea of the real figure."

The 67 year-old secretary of the Cincinnati Clearing House association, disgruntled at being a "dupe," was expected to turn state's evidence against other members of the syndicate when he appears before a grand jury early next week. He was flown here from Ohio Wednesday.

Duble was paroled without bail in protective custody of detectives after his arraignment yesterday on five felony charges of contriving a lottery. He allegedly wrote the daily pay-off number into the clearing house report, cheating thousands of policy players and making $1,000,000 a week for the syndicate.

Duble's attorney, Robert Reckman of Cincinnati, indicated the banked would "sing" on his former confederates because he had been duped as completely as the policy players. Reckman flew to Columbus last night "to see if what Duble did actually was a crime."

"He is not a criminal," Reckman said. "He was taken in."

Killed By Cow

DEFIANCE — (UP) — Trampled by a cow she was milking on her farm near here, Mrs. Almada Ruth Walters, 27, died of a compound skull fracture yesterday.

LESS SLAUGHTERING

COLUMBUS — (INS) — The slaughter of cattle, hogs and sheep in Ohio in May was reported today by the Ohio Cooperative Crop Reporting service to have dropped below 1948 totals.

Buildings Called Hazards

Callan Sets 60-Day Limit

The State fire marshal's office today called Richland county's fairground buildings "a hazard to life and safety," and ordered repairs within 60 days.

Fire Marshal Harry J. Callan said the hazards included defective wiring in most of the buildings, combustible materials in the buildings, defective chimneys, roofs, floors and siding.

The order, addressed to Fair Board President L. L. Rinehart, stated: "You are hereby ordered, within 60 days from the date of the service of this order, to make repairs to the buildings."

A copy of the order was received today by Fire Chief L. J. Steele. It was signed by Fire Marshal Callan.

Repairs necessary at each building were listed. All combustible rubbish and debris shall be removed from the surroundings of every building, the order said.

LISTS GRANGE HALL

Wiring must be repaired to conform to safety standards at the Grange hall, 4-H club, sheep barn, and Barns 1, 2 and 3.

More extensive repairs were ordered at the Art hall. The board was told to repair wiring, remove smoke pipe from coal heating stove, remove all combustible materials from ceiling and partitions, and remove rubbish from building.

Repairs at the dwelling house must include replacing of defective spouting and repair of all electric wiring. The gas heater at a water tank must be vented to the outside of the building, and a dead tree that is dangerous to house must be removed.

Cardboard must be removed from partitions at the draft horse barn, and Barns 4, 5, and 6.

The large must be removed from Barn 5, and placed in a small separate building, or left outside.

The roof, siding, floors and all wiring must be repaired at the poultry barn.

The state fire marshal found defective wiring, siding, roof and doors at the hog barn.

Meanwhile, Fair Board Secretary Orville Kibler said the board has made plans to repair the buildings.

He said he could not comment on the fire marshal's order because he had not seen it, but the fair board believed the buildings would meet the state requirements when the Junior Fair opens Aug. 18.

'Meddling' Draws Fire

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The Vatican was accused today of trying to meddle in U. S. internal affairs during the current dispute over the aid-to-education bill.

Glenn L. Archer, executive director of Protestants and other Americans united for separation of church and state, noted Rome dispatches quoting a semi-official Vatican source as saying that Vatican Cardinal Spellman's attack upon Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt may have been "necessary."

Archer said in a statement that "the intervention of a foreign power into America's internal affairs, whether the invasion be made by Moscow or by Rome, is abhorrent and un-American."

"It was unbecoming to a great church for Cardinal Spellman to call Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt 'an unworthy mother' on account of her views on a public question," he said. "For the Vatican to declare that this attack was a necessity somehow seems unrelated to religion."

Charged In Girl's Death

PRESTONSBURG, Ky. — (INS) — A 26-year-old carnival worker was held today under a charge of first degree murder in the brutal killing of a pretty Kentucky high school cheerleader.

Prestonsburg, Ky., authorities reported that William "Bill" Gamble, the carnival hand, was charged last night in a murder warrant for the June 27 death of Muriel Baldrige, 17-year-old blonde.

They said a 14-inch screwdriver was the murder weapon.

Raises Question of Brannan Plan Cost

The Brannan plan, for paying government subsidies to farmers, has been rejected in Congress. The rejection is not total nor permanent. It was a measure which would have authorized a "trial run" of the plan limited to three crops.

In the debate, however, and in weeks of hearings before committees of Congress, much has been learned about the Brannan plan as a whole. One question asked hundreds of times, has been, what would the plan cost the government?

Any answer would have to be an estimate. By the Brannan plan, prices of some crops would be permitted to follow to what might be the natural level in the open market. Then the government would pay to farmers a subsidy—equal to the difference between the price they received in the open market, and an official figure which the Brannan plan described as the "income support standard."

What the open market price of any crop would be cannot of course be foretold, and neither can the amount of the subsidy on that crop. But persons well informed in this field are able to make estimates.

One such is Senator Aiken of Vermont; he is an authority, he is the Senate author of the crop price support law now on the books. Light on what the Brannan plan would cost appeared in answers Senator Aiken made to questions asked in the Senate. One question (asked by Senator Wherry of Nebraska) was:

"Let us take hogs as an example. Under the Brannan program . . . it is my understanding that the average farmer would receive approximately $19 a hundredweight. If pork sought its own level this price would probably drop below $15, possibly $12."

Senator Aiken replied: "I think it was anticipated that it might drop to $12."

Senator Wherry continued his question: "That would mean, would it not, that funds would have to be provided in the amount of the difference between $19 and $12 a hundredweight on every hog raised and marketed in the United States?"

Senator Aiken replied: "I think it has been estimated by witnesses before the committee that . . . the Brannan plan . . . might cost approximately $2 billion on hogs alone."

Then Senator Wherry asked about another farm product: "Does the Senator know what would be the result with reference to milk?"

Senator Aiken: "I think the cost is estimated at approximately $2,000,400,000."

Senator Aiken was careful to say that his figures were estimates. There are variable factors — the size of a crop, the price at which it might follow in the open market, and a margin of discretion left to the secretary of agriculture in determining the government's "income support standard."

Estimates from many sources about the amounts of subsidies under the Brannan plan vary greatly, but all are large.

Accepting Senator Aiken's estimates, more than $4 billion would be the cost to the government as respects two crops if the Brannan plan were applied to them. And the plan as a whole contemplates similar subsidies for a number of crops, chiefly perishable ones.

Whatever would be the cost of subsidies paid under the Brannan plan on perishable crops, it is only part of the whole story. For the Brannan plan contemplates that as respects many crops, nonperishables or less so, such as grains and cotton, the existing method of price support would continue.

As to these crops, the government would continue to support the prices by practices which include buying large quantities and taking them off the market or making loans on them or otherwise.

With the Brannan plan shelved for the time being, the existing situation is this: the prices of practically all farm crops whatever, perishable or otherwise, are supported by the government. The cost is already enormous, and is likely to be greater, because of the extraordinary size of current crops. The expected total cost is huge.

This takes place at a time when the government is not able to meet its expenditures. There was a deficit in the fiscal year ending last June 30 and a deficit is expected in the present fiscal year. Simultaneously there is a business recession.

In this condition, whether the government can or should continue to expend billions of dollars to support prices of farm crops is a question likely to force itself on the country.

Walter White Says

London, Rome Disturbed At Future of Colonies

The issue of colonies back home is not very real. But in the two European capitals, London and Rome, it ranks with Marshall Plan aid and threats of war as a topic of worried conversation and concern. All over London are posted huge signs proclaiming "Colonial Month." On Oxford street near Marble Arch long lines, three abreast, are queued up waiting patiently to enter an elaborate exhibit of products from what remains of England's dwindling empire.

But what is more significant than such spectacles which have been staged many times before is the expression in the eyes of two Nigerian sentries who pace back and forth at the entrance of the exhibition hall. As tall and soldierly as the more familiar guards at Buckingham Palace, garbed in resplendent and colorful uniforms, their faces are as immobile and expressionless as those of West Point cadets. But not their eyes, if one stands nearby long enough, as we did, to study the quick glances they cast at the gawking bystanders.

No longer as in pre-World War II days do they look at white people as superior beings. No longer do they appear to feel that a priceless privilege has been given them by being brought to London. It wasn't hatred we saw in their eyes. It seemed to be cool disdain, mixed perhaps with a bit of shame at being used as tools and trappings of empire to keep in bondage their fellow colonials back in Africa.

We talked with people in every stratum of British life, who are disturbed in varying degrees by the realization that grim circumstances are rapidly reducing the territorial expanse of what once had the vastest empire in human history to the narrow confines of the British Isles. They do not intend that to happen until every last ounce of diplomacy and bluster has been exhausted. The current and rather blatant order to forbid purchases with dollars — after benefiting from hundreds of millions of Lend Lease and Marshall Plan aid from the United States — is a classic example of Britain's determination to permit no trick in the bag to go unused to retain for herself and to deny to the U. S. leadership in and control of world trade.

In Rome the issue of colonies is equally acute but its implications are more sentimental than realistic, according to well balanced and intelligently pro-democratic Italians. One of them is well born, widely travelled, excellently educated and most cosmopolitan of opinion. He is one of the few of his social and financial position who refused to make any concession whatever to either Mussolini or Hitler and suffered persecution as a result which, fortunately, has not warped his judgment in the least.

We talked until two o'clock one morning and here is a part of what I learned on the colonies issue. Italy's fantastic recovery to the point where she had attained 92 per cent of her 1938 production level by the end of 1948 and her present goal in the very near future of 103 per cent of her 1938 production has lessened popular demand for colonies. The bulk of her economic rehabilitation is due to E. C. A. assistance.

Day before yesterday the 1000th U. S. ship in the past year of such aid docked at Genoa. During 1949 the chief articles to be received will be machinery to modernize Italy's industries. This will create more jobs and lessen somewhat the cry for more land in Africa to accommodate Italy's excess of population.

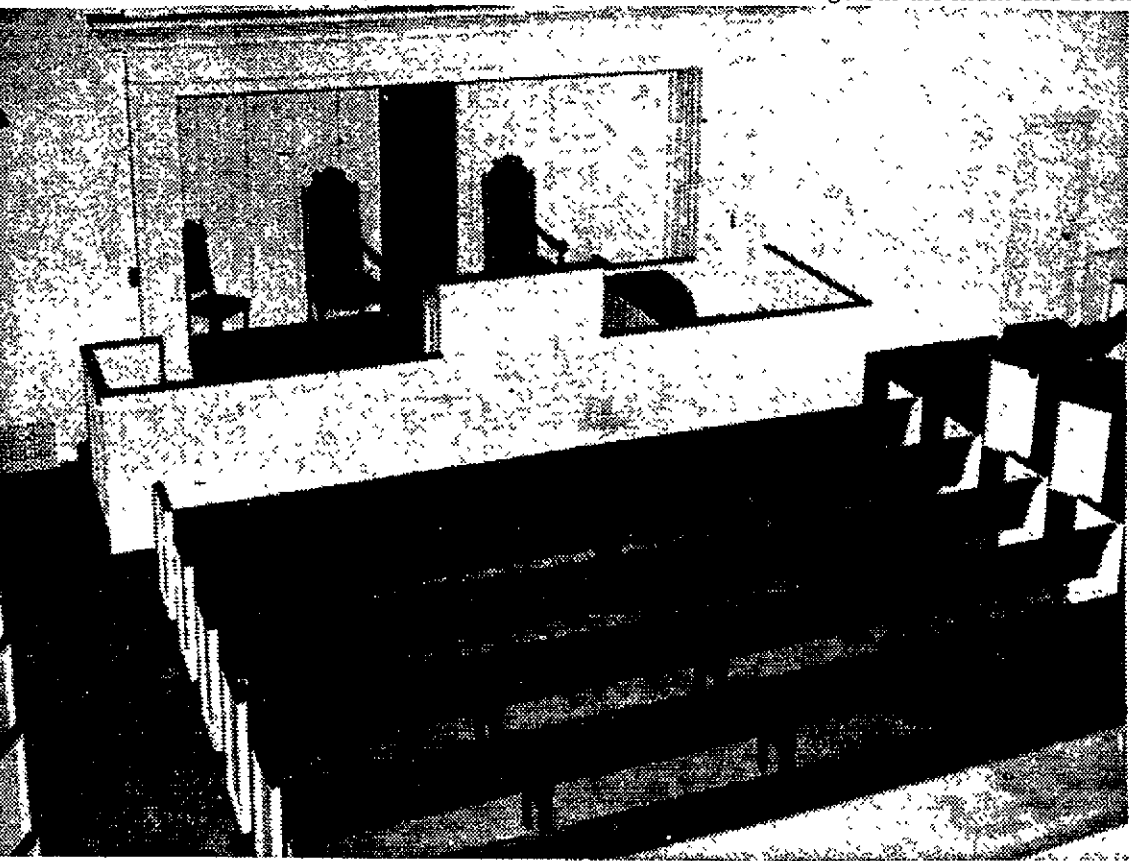

Informed and reasoned thinkers like him are acutely aware, also, that her colonies cost Italy money instead of being a source of revenue and that very few Italians, other than those sent there as civil servants, migrated to Africa to escape overcrowding in Italy. They feel, therefore, that it would save many future economic, military and political headaches if some way were devised to aid the inhabitants of Eritrea, Somaliland and Libya to become self-governing and self-sufficient.

Unhappily, men who think as he does are not numerous in the present government. Even more unhappily, what happens in African and Asiatic colonial areas depends in very large degree upon what is done by one government whose policy on this fundamental question has been to date vacillating, short visioned and chauvinistic. That government is our own.

READY FOR FIRST SERVICE—Members of the First Church of Christ Scientist will worship in this new auditorium on the main floor of the church for the first time a week from Sunday. For the past 24 years all services have been held in the basement rooms which include a smaller auditorium.

Scientists Complete Church Auditorium

A week from tomorrow members of the First Church of Christ will worship in their new auditorium for the first time.

Completion of work on the main entrance to the church and the second floor marks the end of a building project which was begun when the building was erected 24 years ago. Last fall sufficient money had accumulated in a building fund so work could be started on finishing the brick church at 91 Marion avenue. Since then outside stone steps have been built at the main entrance on Marion avenue, an all new auditorium finished on the main floor, and several smaller rooms completed on the second floor. It is estimated the complete building has cost approximately $125,000.

For the past 24 years all services have been held in the basement rooms which include an auditorium which seats about 250 persons. The new auditorium, which seats 366, will accommodate the growing membership of the church.

When the new auditorium is put into use the basement space will be used for Sunday school rooms.

In addition to the auditorium, which measures approximately 30 by 60 feet, two small readers rooms are located on the main floor back of the auditorium. A clerk's office and a board room occupy the second floor.

The dark wood pews, trimmed in white all are new as are the readers' stand and other furniture on the raised platform at the front of the auditorium. A new electronic organ was purchased for the church last fall.

THERE'S A BALCONY
Seating capacity in the auditorium includes seats in a small balcony overlooking the main floor.

Cork flooring has been used in the auditorium to deaden the sound of footsteps and a special acoustic material covers the ceiling.

One of the most unusual features of the auditorium is a special ceiling lighting system which is similar to that used for theatrical lighting. A number of special lenses cover lights spaced at intervals and set flush in the ceiling. The system provides uniform lighting and easier repair since bulbs can be replaced from the second floor instead of having to use high ladders to remove them.

A new steam heating system also has been installed which provides automatic heat according to outside temperature. General contractors for the building project were the Jacob Wolf company. Architectural plans were drawn by the Vernon Redding architectural firm. Heating and plumbing were done by Wade Stanfield, and electrical work by Richland Electric company.

15 Camp Openings Still Available
There are still 15 openings for the 12-day camping session to begin Sunday at Camp Nelson Dodd, Robert Schmidt, YMCA youth director, announced today.

The session opening Sunday will be the fifth period this summer at the camp, the YMCA area camp for Ohio and West Virginia. It will be a 12-day session.

Any boy interested in attending the camp may contact Schmidt at the Y. Activities at the camp include archery, boating, hiking, swimming and handicraft.

Vet Blanks On Insurance Due Aug. 29

VA To Distribute Application Papers

Application blanks for the special $2,800,000,000 National Service Life insurance dividend will be available on Aug. 29 to World War II veterans who are present or former policyholders.

The application blanks can be obtained after Aug. 29 at the local Veterans Administration office, the post office and service organizations. Some 16,000,000 present and former policyholders are eligible for the dividends.

The amount of dividends is based on the amount and type of insurance carried, the period the insurance was carried, and the age bracket of the policyholder.

The dividend was made possible by failure of estimates of deaths in the various age brackets to come up to expectations thus creating the huge surplus. Thus a veteran who has paid in the same amount of money as another veteran may receive a larger dividend, because deaths in his age bracket fell far short of the estimates.

FIRST IN JANUARY

First dividend checks are scheduled for mailing in January. The dividend covers a period from October, 1943 until October, 1947, when the first dividend period ends.

G. D. Weidemaier, Officer in charge of the Mansfield Veterans Administration office, explained that all the veteran need do is obtain an application form, fill it out and mail it to the Veterans Administration in Washington, D. C.

The application must be made on the official form, which will not be available until Aug. 29. Applications on duplicate forms will not be accepted. Any application received prior to Aug. 29 will be discarded and no attempt made to process it.

The three-fold application card contains all the necessary instructions to get the dividend. If the veteran does not know the number of his insurance policy, the applicant can be identified by his service number, rank and the exact name used during service with the armed forces.

Tom Clark's Loyalty Rewarded

MOVES on the political checkerboard bring added prominence to Tom Clark, an ambitious Texas boy who is now to advance to the eminence of a place on the United States Supreme Court, not because of outstanding qualifications as a lawyer but because of close friendship and unswerving loyalty to President Truman, even during the dark days preceding last November's election when most other supporters of the President were accepting defeat as inevitable.

It appears that whatever Tom Clark lacks in legal ability he makes up in energy, and it is his own observation, in explaining work days of 12 hours or more, that these are necessary "because I'm not as smart as the other fellows."

Moving up from the cabinet post of attorney general, Clark has had a vast amount of experience in governmental affairs, and it is just possible, with his ambition and his capacity for hard work, that he will strive to acquire whatever qualifications he may lack for creditable service in his new high post.

Plainly a political appointment also is that of Senator J. Howard McGrath, of Rhode Island, to succeed Clark as attorney general, which will also open the way for selection of a successor to McGrath as chairman of the Democratic national committee.

While the Supreme Court is theoretically entirely free from partisan bias, it seems noteworthy that as a result of appointments by the late President Roosevelt and President Truman, Justice Harold H. Burton is the only one among the nine members who is a Republican—if that makes any difference.

Municipal Courts Meet Need

MANSFIELD'S more than twenty years satisfactory experience with a municipal court, as a progressive step from mayor's court and justice of peace courts in Madison township, causes wonderment at the slowness with which this change in judicial procedure has been extended to other parts of the state.

An effort was made at the just-ended legislative session to create 11 new municipal courts, as additions to the present 39, but a bill to this effect was vetoed by Governor Lausche, who praised the general objective as "extremely laudable and highly desirable" but held that the measure as passed "failed substantially to attain its goal."

Except for small matters of civil litigation, justice of peace courts with jurisdiction limited to townships, seem to serve little purpose under modern conditions, while municipal courts—granted greater authority and presided over by a competent judge—can do much to relieve the common pleas courts of minor cases.

If, as claimed by Governor Lausche, the legislature either accidentally or intentionally failed to formulate a bill which would accomplish intended purposes, then the actual accomplishment must await later action.

Petitions For Ballot Form Change

NO HESITANCY should be felt by anyone in signing one of the petitions now being circulated with a view to presenting a proposed change in ballot form at the November election. This is an entirely non-partisan idea, based on belief that better officials are likely to be elected for some minor offices if selection is made by name and party designation rather than by present inclination to vote "straight" party tickets, regardless of qualifications of some of the candidates thereon.

If, as now seems probable, a sufficient number of signatures are secured to gain a place on the November ballot, voters can then decide the issue.

Next Friday, August 5, has been set as the deadline for securing signatures to petitions, which must be processed and filed in the office of the secretary of state by August 10 in order to be assured a place on the November ballots.

When Flood Disaster Hits China

FLOODS in China are said to have made 20,000,000 homeless. If the Yangtze were the Mississippi this would be the biggest news story of the year. Disaster aid would have been mobilized on a huge scale and American efficiency would be busy reducing chaos to order, alleviating misery; reuniting separated families and feeding the hungry.

Probably nothing of the sort is going on in China, where one government is on the run and another is consolidating its gains. Both have issued appeals for quick and efficient action, but it is unlikely that either can do much in the affected area, where the political situation is still unsettled.

Negro Professor For Harvard

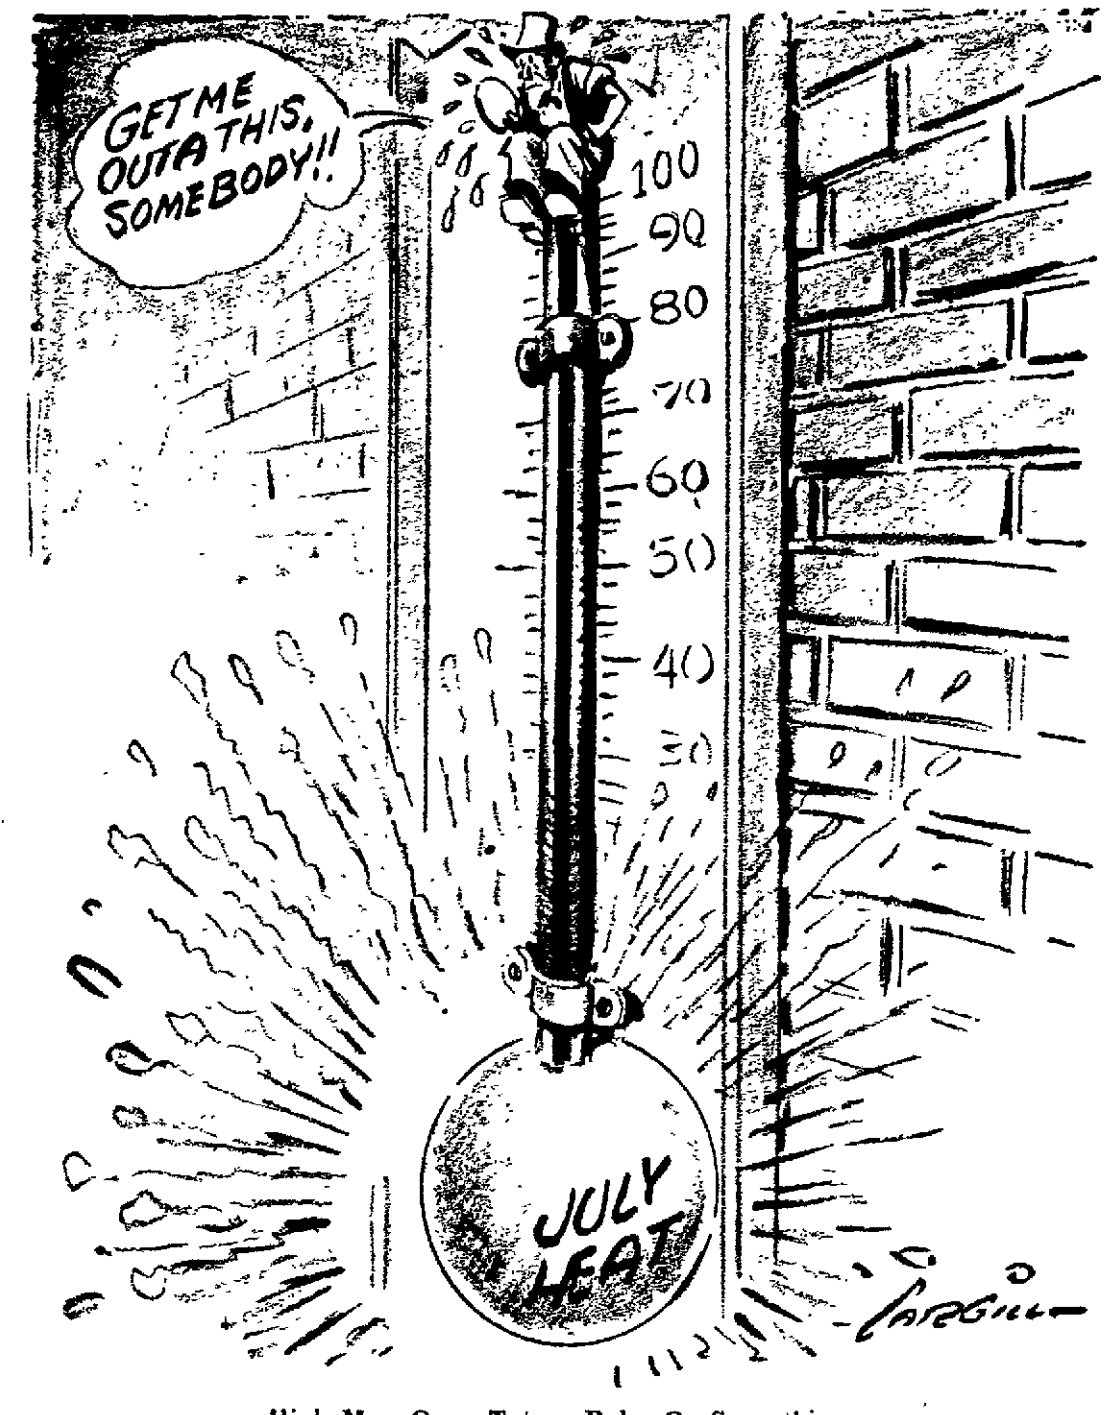

A NEGRO has been appointed to a professorship at Harvard, the first in the university's history. This is Dr. William A. Hinton, formerly a laboratory director for the Massachusetts department of public health, who now becomes clinical professor of bacteriology and immunology at the Harvard medical school. Dr. Hinton has long been known as an authority on the detection and treatment of venereal diseases.

Such progress for one of his race would have seemed impossible when the Negroes first gained their freedom from slavery. It shows what talent and perseverance can accomplish, given beforehand the one essential condition of a fair chance.

Claude Cailan advises: "You had best move to a little farm and begin growing something that Congress may be able to send you a few seeds, but it isn't going to be able to send everybody vegetables."

It is being explained that in the British dock strike the spelling was "dock", not "Doc"—and that the medical profession was not involved.

Feats regarded as impossible are still compared to "holding back the tides," but that is one of the things that might be done some day.

Raymond Moley's Analysis

California Finds Pension Plan Costly

SANTA BARBARA, Cal. — California's easy system of initiating and voting on constitutional amendments produced in 1948 one of the most fantastic laws in the history of the state.

An old - age pension plan fattered a long addition to the basic law of the state, which purported to enact in permanent form the state's policies toward the aged.

Provisions for the blind were included, probably because they would draw additional votes from those who recognize a real claim for people thus afflicted.

The amendment increased the maximum aid to the aged from $60 to $75 a month; dropped the age requirement from 65 to 63; made expenditures for old - age assistance a first claim on the revenues of the state; removed the administration of the act from the counties to the state; and, under the guise of eliminating politics, made the administrator of the system an elective office.

Perhaps to the student of oddities in government, the most unusual and indefensible part of the amendment is a provision actually naming the person to be the first administrator of the act.

Such a perversion of governmental practice would be unconstitutional almost anywhere. But since this provision became part of the constitution itself, there was little to do about it.

The amendment provided for an increase in aid to the blind from $75 to $85 a month.

Weaknesses Recognized.

THE COST of this measure was estimated in Governor Warren's budget to be about $120,000,000 for the first year and a half of its operation. In succeeding years the amount would be bound to increase because of the accumulating eligibility of the hundreds of thousands who have moved into the state since 1940.

The amendment also removed from relatives all real legal compulsion to contribute to the support of their elders. This presumably makes the Fifth Commandment of Moses mean horror without support.

In the confusion of the present dential campaign, there was little chance to debate this issue last year, and the amendment carried.

Since this preferred charge on the treasury was an inevitable squeeze on the schools and the teachers, as well as on other hitherto legitimate responsibilities of the state, growing opposition has developed, and a new amendment has been proposed which would repeal many of the more objectionable provisions of the 1948 amendment.

The new proposal will be voted upon this November. It will be a hard fight to pass the repeal, but its success may be brought about because of the activity of teachers' organizations, associations for aid to the blind which were discriminated against in the present law, business and taxpayers' groups and others.

This eternal battle at the polls over measures which should be left to the discretion of responsible legislative bodies is the bitter fruit of a movement, 40 years ago, which was supposed to give the government back to the people.

Government has not been returned to the whole people by the initiative and referendum. It has been returned only to those minority groups whose special interests promote the unceasing energy necessary to by-pass a majority that is not always on its guard.

Frankly Speaking

Clark Doing Right Well

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON — Tom Clark's been doing all right, all his life. No rags-to-riches story, his.

Father was a lawyer. He's a lawyer. Finished college, finished law school, practiced in Texas.

Worked for the government 12 years. Been U. S. attorney general since 1945.

Big smile, quick handshake. Picture in the papers often. Wavy hair.

Wears Texas hats, bow-ties. Has 150 of them. The ties, that is. Rainbow color.

Always tells visitors: "Come back and see me any time. The door is always open." Greater joiner, great fraterizer, great party - goner, member of all kinds of clubs and outfits:

Masons: Shriner of the Scottish Rite, Delta Tau Delta; Phi Alpha Delta; National Press club, University club; Chevy Chase Country club; The American, Texas and Federal Bar associations; American Legion; Veterans of Foreign Wars; Eagles; Exchange clubs, and Rotary International.

Loyalty Rewarded.

NOW HE'S going to join the Supreme Court, then which nothing's more exclusive. Only nine members.

Big fat boost in pay, too. Getting $15,000 as attorney general now. Will get $25,000 on Supreme Court Lifetime job.

Been nice going, smooth, steady climb, and Clark's only 49.

His great friend, President Truman, who made him attorney general four years ago, announces he'll nominate him for the Supreme Court to succeed the late Justice Frank Murphy.

Clark can't make it though, unless Senate members approve. Senators said at once the nomination seemed all right to them, some said very good, excellent. President's loyal to his loyal friends. Clark's been loyal. Stuck with the President when fair-weather friends ducked out last fall, thinking political campaign was lost and Mr. Truman's eggs were cooked.

Going to be interesting, seeing what happens next fall when court justices come back, sit down, start business, and Clark sits down as one of them.

Everything not always hunky-dory on the court. Been plenty of squabbles there.

That's why Mr. Truman several years ago appointed another great friend, Fred Vinson, famous as pourer-of-oil-on-troubled-waters, to be the court's chief justice.

Big, solemn Vinson — looking, as Time magazine once said, like a sleepy sheep — poured his soothing oils on the troubled court, did what he could to calm down the battles.

Clark and Vinson now give Mr. Truman two great and warm friends among the nine justices of the court.

How will Clark do among the high-doms of the court? Probably all right. What line will his thinking follow: conservative, progressive, what?

He follows pretty much the line of Mr. Truman's thinking.

Dave Boone Says:

Barnard Baruch has docked with another lead of wisdom. Bernard, when warped in, was accompanied by the Queen Mary, but he completely eclipsed her.

It would be a good idea if folks began helping themselves instead of just depending on assistance. Mr. Baruch says. But I'm afraid that idea is too old-fashioned to get anywhere at the moment.

He says, "The English are a great people, but today they are spending so much time nationalizing and socializing that they are neglecting to use their energies to develop the country and increase production." They're not alone in that alley. "Let's let things go to pot while we experiment some more," seems to be a fairly widespread slogan.

As Others See It

What's In a Name.

The Republicans are beginning to talk about a "Truman depression," which has a ring of poetic justice but doesn't make it a fact any more than the Democrats made it a fact in their talk about a "Hoover depression."—Kansas City Star.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Congress Splits On Extent of Arms Aid

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

CONGRESS studied critically last week President Truman's foreign military aid program to prop up world defenses against Soviet Russia.

It is a history-making and controversial program. Mr. Truman wants $1,450,000,000 the first year, the bulk of it to arm western Europe. He also wants authority to send American arms to any nation whose strength, in his judgment, might contribute to American security.

The differences between Congress and the White House are not over general policy. There is basic agreement that the ruthless spread of communism must be blocked.

Ratification of the North Atlantic defense alliance by the Senate proved that. The vote was 82 - 13, well above the two-thirds majority required for treaty approval by the constitution.

How and Where.

The disagreement is on how to go about blocking Soviet expansion and how much needs to be done.

The President asked that $1,093,450,000 be allocated for arms for eight European members of the North Atlantic pact. Most of it is for the Western Union countries (Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg) which already have planned coordination of their own military power. The aid would bring to combat strength a total of about 1,500,000 men.

In addition, aid would strengthen the relatively small forces of Norway, Denmark and Italy.

Revolving Fund.

The President also asked for $300,580,000 to continue military aid to Greece, Turkey, Iran, Korea and the Philippines. He wanted another $45,000,000 in a revolving fund for use anywhere in the world it might be considered best used in an emergency.

The President outlined his program Monday in a long message to Congress. It was greeted with such a storm of criticism that seemingly the bipartisan foreign policy, which has been kept intact since the war, is headed for one of its severest tests.

It may be that the administration may be able to get only an interim program until the military committee is set up under the pact.

Strategy In China.

The state department moved to review its far eastern diplomatic policies last week as reports indicated a new but long-expected phase in the Chinese civil war. The communists apparently are mounting a drive toward Canton and the southern coast which may put the finishing touches of what is left of the Nationalist regime of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson and his advisers must decide what type of political and trade relationships to establish if and when a Communist republic is proclaimed in China.

If large pockets of resistance continue in remote areas after the Communists have overrun most of China, should the United States assist the resistance groups?

Another problem is what to do about other far east nations under the shadow of a Communist China.

All aspects of the far eastern situation will be studied intensively this summer and early fall. A half dozen new - governmental experts will aid diplomatic department chiefs.

Abroad

Britain's Problems.

Britain's Labor government is having labor trouble again. The cabinet, swept into power four years ago on a tide of union votes, met repeatedly in special session last week trying to avert new strikes in the state-owned rail and mine industries that would cripple Britain's fight to overcome an economic crisis.

The wave of new strike threats came just as London dockers ended a month - long walkout. The government had to call out troops to handle cargo during the stalemate.

The cabinet faces this dilemma: to refuse pay raises sought by railway and coal mine workers might bring on strikes that would hamstring the drive to sell more goods abroad.

On the other hand, to allow raises might increase production costs and force upward prices of goods already hard to sell in the competitive export market.

Labor Party tacticians are studying the risks closely, in view of the government's reliance on labor votes in next year's general election.

France Perking Up.

Reviving industry in France, spurred by Marshall Plan aid, has restored the franc nearly to its official value while the British pound has been slipping.

Last winter it took 350 francs to buy a dollar on the uncontrolled black market. Today it takes 345. The official rate is 318. The pound, officially, 1,090 francs, is quoted in the uncontrolled black market at 920.

France is not yet out of the economic woods. Parisian traders and bankers do not allow themselves to be too impressed by some government claims that the franc has become one of the world's strong currencies. They will wait and see.

The franc, however, had made real gains. These are some of the basic explanations: European Recovery Plan dollars supply most of the French dollar needs. Equipment this money buys is beginning to take hold in industry.

Russia's Bumper Year.

Moscow predicts a good Russian harvest this year because of adequate rain in June and July for vastly increased acreage under the current three-year plan to boost farm output.

Soviet officials reported industrial production running at 101 per cent of targets boosted since January 1.

Grain is one of the Soviet Union's chief exports. Russia recently agreed to swap wheat and other grains to Britain in return for machinery in a one - year trade agreement. She also is negotiating a grain deal with France. She seeks machinery from the west.

Moscow said industrial efforts to meet the new targets resulted in a total output for April, May and June 20 per cent above that for the same period a year ago.

Transforming the Negev.

Israel is planning to irrigate the Negev desert, one of the driest areas on earth. The Negev has a rainfall in some places of less than one inch a year. Rain often comes in one or two violent showers that transform the wadis (small dry stream beds) into temporary torrents.

The Negev, a wilderness since long before Biblical times, is composed of soil known as "golden earth." Its technical name is loess, meaning most of the soil was deposited by winds as well as water, hundreds of thousands to millions of years ago.

This same golden earth, from the same sources, makes the great granaries of the world — in the American midwest, the Ukraine, lower Volga, central Asia, China, North Africa and the Argentine.

government officials out of the country in the latest effort to smash Chinese influence in that lofty remote land in the Himalaya mountains.

Chinese Nationalists claim suzerainty (a kind of feudal control less definite than sovereignty) over Tibet.

Early this month the Tibetan state council — Lamas who rule in the name of the teen - age Dalai Lama — ordered Chinese government personnel out of Tibet within two weeks. All members of a Chinese diplomatic mission at Lhasa, the mountain capital, departed immediately for India.

Guard Against Boredom

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHAT'S the greatest menace to marriage? Not spats. Spats often help to get a lot of dandruff out of your system.

Not mothers-in-law. Mothers-in-law are an occupational hazard which most of us anticipate and vulcanize ourselves accordingly.

Not feminine jobs. Jobs are certainly a threat to the Big Boy's dream of a Rose Covered Cottage and a Dear Little Woman waiting with the carpet slipper.

But they are an asset to any bankroll and the average husband can stand a lot of busted dreams for the sake of a 100 per cent increase in his income.

Not even infidelity, though it's always a dirty deal by any reckoning. But many a wife will condone even infidelity on the ground that her husband is irresistible. Husbands, of course, always condone it — in themselves. They don't bother about grounds.

Then, if these rugged causes aren't the menace to marriage, what is?

Boredom, darling. Plain boredom.

Boredom that sets in far too early and lasts far too long — if not forever.

Boredom sets in long before the comfortable adjustment of friendly habit has been reached. It sets in when we stop making an adventure of ourselves, when we continue relying on the same old props that made courting a success. Boredom sets in when we stop being new and challenging.

Some wives try to meet this situation by teasing about the Other Fellow, hoping to arouse their mates' jealousy. Husbands do vice-versa. That's the burk. Jealousy never paid off in anything but disgust and divorce.

Some try tears. Never worked.

Timely Editorial

Highways Built for Death.

You are cruising along the highway at a serene fifty-five miles an hour meeting other cars with a swoosh and two or three feet between you and eternity. Suddenly one of the oncoming cars swerves to your side of the highway, heading straight at you. In that split second you guess the driver is asleep. To your right is a ditch. If you try to get around on his left he may wake up and swerve back to his side at the same instant. What can you do?

Every year that question of what to do has been the last frantic thought of several thousand persons who die on American highways.

On the ordinary 2-lane highway the capable driver can't be sure of avoiding a head-on collision, the common cause of the most dreadful accidents. He may be a helpless victim.

On a modern 4-lane, divided highway, there is virtually no possibility of a head-on collision. A fool can kill himself anywhere, but a modern highway gives the careful man every chance to protect himself and his passengers.—Kansas City Star.

yet with any real person — not when there was a baseball game to go to or a club to sleep in. Some try invalidism — or tantrums — or go home to Mama. Result — ditto.

No, the only $64 answer to marriage boredom, on either male's part, is wider interests, an enlarged mental horizon, deeper sympathy, understanding and tolerance.

Any life, married or single, that stands still, always stagnates. Boredom is simply a sign of slow rot somewhere. If you want to escape it, get going. Grow up and out! Make a fresh adventure of yourself even if you can only do it with a new cake recipe. Change!

Riches Mean Little To Former Hollander Who Retains Faith

NEW YORK—People sometimes say: "The only way you can get in the newspapers is to hold up a drugstore or elope with a movie star."

So today I'd like to tell you the story of a simple heart—the story of "Mrs. Van." She is a fine old lady who never robbed a bank or ran against Harry Truman for president.

"But I've had a wonderful life," she said. It might not seem so to some people, but it does to her.

She has a long Dutch name, but she is shy and asked me not to use it. So I'll just call her "Mrs. Van" — as everybody does.

Mrs. Van is a practical nurse. She is white-haired and 63, but her skin is as fair as milk. I got to know her when she came to stay with a young neighbor couple expecting their second child. She would only accept $10 a week.

When the baby came, the young mother said:

"Do you know what Mrs. Van did with half of her first week's pay? She bought me flowers."

Money doesn't mean much anymore to Mrs. Van. But being helpful does.

She likes the younger generation — and disapproves of it.

"I don't think they can face life as we did," she said. "They don't have discipline. If I had lived as young girls do today I would never have been able to confront the problems I met with in my married life — no, never."

Mrs. Van was born in Holland and married a carpenter at 21. They had five children when he came to the United States to found a new home here. It was just at the time America entered the first World War, and for two years he couldn't send money back to his family.

"I had to move into an abandoned schoolhouse," said Mrs. Van. "We had no breakfast, and the children took a carrot or a turnip to school. For lunch we had potatoes, and I saved the peels and cooked them for supper."

The neighbors felt sorry for us, but I was happy. We were all together — the children and I — and we were healthy."

After the war she and the children came over, and the family settled in Pennsylvania. Mrs. Van had twins at the age of 39, and one died. Later her husband lost his mind. He spent five years in a mental institution before his death, and Mrs. Van had to support the family.

"I didn't know the language well," she said. "So I had to work as a scrubwoman and do washing. Then I studied the language with the children and I became a practical nurse. But I never was in want of a job."

"Now the children don't want me to work. They say I worked all my life for them, and now I should rest. But I like to help where I can."

She had a serene faith that never faltered in her long years of trouble.

"You just have to have courage and responsibility," she said. "Without courage there is nothing."

Mrs. Van has no desire to re-visit Europe.

"Here if you work you can have the same things as the rich man," she said. "You can't over there. You don't even buy your groceries at the same store."

She is sturdily indifferent to the present plight of the world. "I believe the Lord will have to come and settle it," said Mrs. Van. "And the way the world is going, I don't think it will be long."

"There is an awful tribulation coming, but it won't get me. The Lord will come and take me away first. He will take care of his own."

Petitions Ask Yellow Oleo Vote

Backers Obtain 226,881 Signatures

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Petitions bearing 226,881 signatures were filed with Secretary of State Charles F. Sweeney today to place the question of legalizing yellow oleomargarine before Ohio's voters in November.

The filing virtually cinched the placing of the measure on the ballot since more than two thirds of the signatures would have to be disqualified to void them. Only 69,113 signatures are required.

The petitions were filed by a committee of Columbus housewives officially designated to represent the Association for Yellow Margarine in Ohio.

The filers were: Mrs. Dorothy Clinger, Mrs. Josephine Dumbough, and Mrs. Beatrice Korrell.

They were accompanied by Cincinnati and Columbus Attorney Ed D. Schorr, former Republican state chairman and counsel for the association.

The measure may go on the ballot because the legislature defeated the bill to legalize the manufacture and sale of colored margarine after it had been submitted to the lawmakers by petition. The measure was passed by the senate but tabled in the rural - dominated house.

Union Trial Judge Named

Ashlander Handed Warren Case

ASHLAND — Common Pleas Judge H. E. Culbertson of Ashland county goes to Warren Tuesday to hear the contempt of court charges filed by the Taylor-Winfield corporation there against 59 employees.

Judge Culbertson was named by Ohio Chief Justice Carl V. Weyandt to hear the charges after the union filed a complaint against Judge G. H. Birrell, of Warren, charging prejudice.

Judge Weyandt dismissed the charges against Judge Birrell, but the latter asked to step down from the trial.

The company charges the 59 members of the CIO-United Electrical Workers violated a restraining order issued by Judge Birrell against illegal picketing at the Taylor-Winfield plant, where a strike has been in progress since June 2.

Runs Into Street, Hurt

Willie Walker, 46, of 78 East Sixth street, suffered minor injuries when he was struck by a car early this morning at Sixth and Diamond streets.

Walker was taken to General hospital in a police cruiser following the accident, and hospital attendants said his condition was "good" this morning.

According to police, Walker was hit by a car driven by Wilfred B. Phillips, 299 Wayne street at 12:30 a. m. today.

Phillips told police he was traveling south on Diamond street and had the green light at the intersection. As he approached the intersection, Walker ran east across Sixth street and was hit by the front of the car, Phillips said.

Police said Walker ran out in the street in front of the car.

Herring Started Selling Autos In 1909

Ends 40 Years In Car Business

Roy Herring, who has been selling automobiles to Mansfielders for 40 years, will retire from the car business when he closes his desk tonight.

Herring, who has operated the city's oldest auto agency, thinks he has earned a rest. He has sold cars since 1909. He began with the old EMF of the Studebaker corporation and closed his business career selling Chryslers. In between, he sold a half-dozen well-known makes of automobiles.

Selling transportation vehicles runs in the family. It began way back in 1898 when James H. Herring, father of Roy, began building buggies for Mansfield's elite and those fortunate enough to own a driving mare. With him even then were his four sons, John, George W., Dimon and Roy. Now only two of the family are left, Dimon and Roy.

In 1909 when it began to look as if cars would replace the lumber tired buggy, the five Herrings opened an auto agency in a building across the street from the present Herring agency, 30 South Walnut street.

They continued to do business there until 1913.

"That year, the Bowden and Snyder feed company had a fire in the old First Lutheran church where our building now stands. It was pretty well destroyed," Herring said, "although a few of the good bricks were cleaned and used after we bought the ground and started erecting this building."

The site was a particularly appropriate one for the Herring father and brothers. They were members of the First Lutheran church and the two brothers still hold their membership there.

The first car sold by the Herrings was the Everett-Meltzer-Flanders (EMF). The Herrings and their employees called it "Every Morning Fix."

Herring remembers the time Fred Bushnell (former Mansfield postmaster) got stuck with his Winston on Ashland hill. Those were the days, of course, when cars were cranked.

"That day, Fred had cranked and cranked and still the car wouldn't go. He called me, and I cranked and cranked. Finally, I had to back the car down the hill to level ground before we could get it started. Bushnell was pretty mad."

"And then I remember a little Italian," Herring chuckled. "He thought one of the old Model T Fords. He came back to the garage and said 'I push in the clutch and he goes back; I push it in and he goes forward and then I push him again and he goes like hell. I often wish I had a record of that conversation.'"

During his 40 years in the auto business, Herring has gone through three depressions—in 1922, 1927 and 1932.

GLAD TO RETIRE

"I'm very happy to get out of it all," he declared. "Today factories are too demanding and the tax situation is a headache. It's too much for a man of my age."

Herring will be 66 next November. He is retiring partly because the Chrysler corporation, for which he has sold cars for the past 23 years, has a rule that employees will be pensioned at 65. And then the company wanted Herring to remodel the building and he declined.

Although Roy Herring has been head of the agency since 1936 when Dimon sold his interests, the building is owned by Dimon Herring who bought it in 1922.

"What is Herring going to do after he retires today?"

"I don't know," he said speculatively. "I really don't know. I'm still in excellent health. I like to play golf and I'm interested in baseball. And I think Mrs. Herring and I will take a trip to California. But I'm certainly glad my son isn't going on with the automobile business. It's too complicated today to be pleasant."

Barbershop Fours Plan 2-Way Concert

The "Annual Parade of Quartets" of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc., will be staged next Dec. 3.

Ralph Hughes, chapter secretary, said the event will be staged at Senior high school and at John Simpson junior high school simultaneously.

This will be the second annual parade—the first one last Dec. 4 drew about 2,000 persons to the two auditoriums. Hughes said he heard comments that the parade was one of the most successful ever put on in Ohio for the first time.

The parade will have 10 quartets entered. Hughes said that the Findlay Elks Harmonicaires, which was the Elks national champions last year, will be on hand for the parade. Another quartet which has accepted an invitation to appear is the Tiger Town Four of Massillon, which won second place in the district contest, consisting of three states.

The Mansfield chapter will be represented by the Hum-dingers. Hughes said that last year the Simpson auditorium was packed while the Senior high school auditorium was nearly filled.

A shuttle car service is maintained from one auditorium to the other, for transporting the quartets.

Truck Hit, Driver Flees

A truck owned by William Gerosh, 823 Springmill street, was hit by a hit-skip driver while it was parked in front of 215 North Main street at 11:10 p. m. yesterday.

A witness told police the hit-skip car was parked in front of the truck. The driver of the hit-skip car seemed to be having trouble pulling away from the curb, pulled forward as far as he could and then rammed into the front of the truck, the witness said.

The truck was knocked about 20 feet and the front end damaged. Police are tracing the driver of the hit-skip car through the license number obtained by the witness.

Check On Friend of President

Drew Pearson Enters Fray

WASHINGTON — (INS)—A Senate investigation committee source said today that "several cases of perjury" may result from the current probe of Washington's "five percenter" influence sellers.

The source, who declined to be identified, said also that investigators have turned up information on "pull-peddling" in the capital that "will be revealing to the taxpayers of the country."

He told reporters: "We have found irregularities, laxity, personal favoritism and suspicious actions in connection with the awarding of government contracts."

"I believe we will have a little difficulty chasing down kick-backs or payoffs which would cinch criminal liability cases."

"But we may develop, from the course of the hearings, several cases of perjury."

PROBE MARAGON

Subcommittee Chairman Hoey (D., N. C.), said meanwhile that his staff had been investigating the business affairs of John Maragon, friend of President Truman and intimate of Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, "for some time" prior to published accusations that Maragon was connected with "five percenter" activities.

Maragon has demanded a full investigation of charges that he is a "five percenter" and has asked that Columnist Drew Pearson be summoned and "be required to furnish any and all specific evidence in that connection."

He said Pearson accused him in a July 20 column of being "not only a five percenter but a 50 percenter."

Pearson replied, when he heard of the demand:

"I should be delighted to testify."

Galion Lifts Debated Law

GALION — Council here last night repealed the ordinance establishing working conditions and grievance procedure for employees at the Municipal Light and Power company's plant.

The ordinance was passed July 5 and became effective later in the month without Mayor H. H. Hartmann's signature.

Council repealed a previous ordinance which governed working conditions for most of the city employees without making provisions for them in the new ordinance.

Since the passage of Ordinance 2828 city officials and light plant employees have been thrown into a turmoil. Councilmen last night emphasized the need of a competent superintendent of utilities and adopted a "wait and see" attitude on a new ordinance to replace the repealed measure.

Hawaiian Dock Strike Cuts Off Food Supplies, Dope Moves In

HERE'S SOME information from Honolulu, all of which is in recent secret files in Washington:

Food and Cattle supplies are cut off by the Red strike of the dockers, but one commodity gets through—dope. Federal agents, territorial and local authorities and military police are seizing marijuana, cocaine, heroin and prepared reefers.

The forces are concentrating against a Hawaiian named Winston Churchill Henry, no less.

He is out on bail after three narcotics raps, his trials constantly postponed.

Dope is stored in barricaded buildings. Three were raided in one night and the wicked stuff was found in hideaways, stashed from basement to rafters. But the traffic is still flourishing, though honest enterprises are starving.

Hotels are one-quarter occupied. Waikiki beach-front rooms that were scarce at $84 a day are empty at $15. Hotels and cafes are out of food. Such nightlife as the main centers knew is kaput. Tourists must enter by air, and are down to a dribble. Hundreds of establishments and businesses, are shut down because merchandise is shut off while overhead goes on.

Most of the Strikers are Filipinos. Many have overstayed their U. S. visas and are in illegally. A word from the Immigration department would get them out in a breeze. But there is no word. The Reds boast they have a line into high offices in Washington.

Chief bodies of communists on the islands are Filipino and Japanese dock and plantation workers, principally aliens. But you mustn't touch them, for their unions want it that way, and they have the drag to keep it that way.

New York is no isolated phenomenon in glaring abuses of public welfare, which has created throughout most of the land a constantly growing caste of professional charity-chiselers. Since I published some comments on the New York situation, where $3,000,000 a week in handouts has been rapidly surpassed, I have heard from many parts of the nation, small towns as well as huge cities.

Strangely enough, the most vehement outbursts come from field-workers in relief bureaus, the conscientious careerists in such operations, who are disgusted over the swindles they are not allowed to expose and stop because of the political aspect of giving away public funds.

I learn that "the separation racket" is by no means unique to teeming New York. It flourishes in hinterland districts, too.

Moreover, more than one correspondent points out that not only do families spuriously "split" so they can get on double dole, but there is an upsurge of separations because actually parted couples can get individual handouts and merrily bust up, each then supported on public charity.

Ohio General Assembly Spends Hectic Last Day at Work

Override Lausche's Veto Acts

OK Two Out of Seven Bills

COLUMBUS — * — Members of the 98th Ohio General assembly, weary and soaked with perspiration, went home for sleep last night.

There will not be another legislative session until January, 1951. At least that's what they hoped as they wound up a session which began Jan. 3.

Final adjournment day normally is a loafing affair, with only a handful of members present. But 46 senators and representatives of the 98th put in a furiously busy day before the House adjourned at 9:14 p. m. (EST) and the senate at 9:31.

Here is what happened: The legislature, disregarding Gov. Frank J. Lausche's objections, voted into law two of the seven bills which he vetoed. The Senate rejected two of his appointments and confirmed 10 others.

The Senate and House restored to the capital improvements bill four of the nine items Lausche cut out. One appropriates $130,000 for air-conditioning Senate and House chambers and committee rooms.

A frantic effort was made to enact a new municipal court bill replacing the one Lausche vetoed. The House passed the substitute 101-7, but the Senate refused to suspend its rules and take up the bill. The Senate vote was 22-3, with 25 votes needed. That left it dead.

The Senate upheld the governor's veto of State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson's bill to pre-audit poor relief expenditures. A motion to override the veto received only seven favorable votes. Twenty were needed.

Here are the two bills which became law over the governor's veto:

Transferring quail from the song bird list to the game bird list and authorizing the conservation division to propagate them during a 10-year period in which they may not be shot, and pegging the salary scale of 25 claims referees in the bureau of unemployment compensation at $5,000 to $6,000 a year. The scale now is $3600 to $4500.

The two appointments rejected by the Senate were Milton Ronshiem, Cadiz editor, and Clarence C. Fav, Lakewood coal operator, to the strip-mine board of review.

The appointments needed 17 votes for confirmation. The vote on Ronshiem was 12 yes to 9 no, on Fav, 10 yes to 14 no.

Loudonville Spot Facing Hearing

LOUDONVILLE — Young's Arcade, Inc. local liquor permit holder, faces a hearing next week before the state board of liquor control in Columbus. The board has hearings for 25 liquor permit holders scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Arcade holds beer, whisky and beer and wine carry-out permits. It is charged with carrying on business at a location other than that specified on its permit.

Barricades Self In Apartment, Fires Gun To Protest Eviction

NEW YORK — (UP) — Sara M. Doig barricaded herself and her blind mother in their ground floor east side tenement flat Friday and opened fire with a .22 rifle on officers and moving men who arrived to evict them.

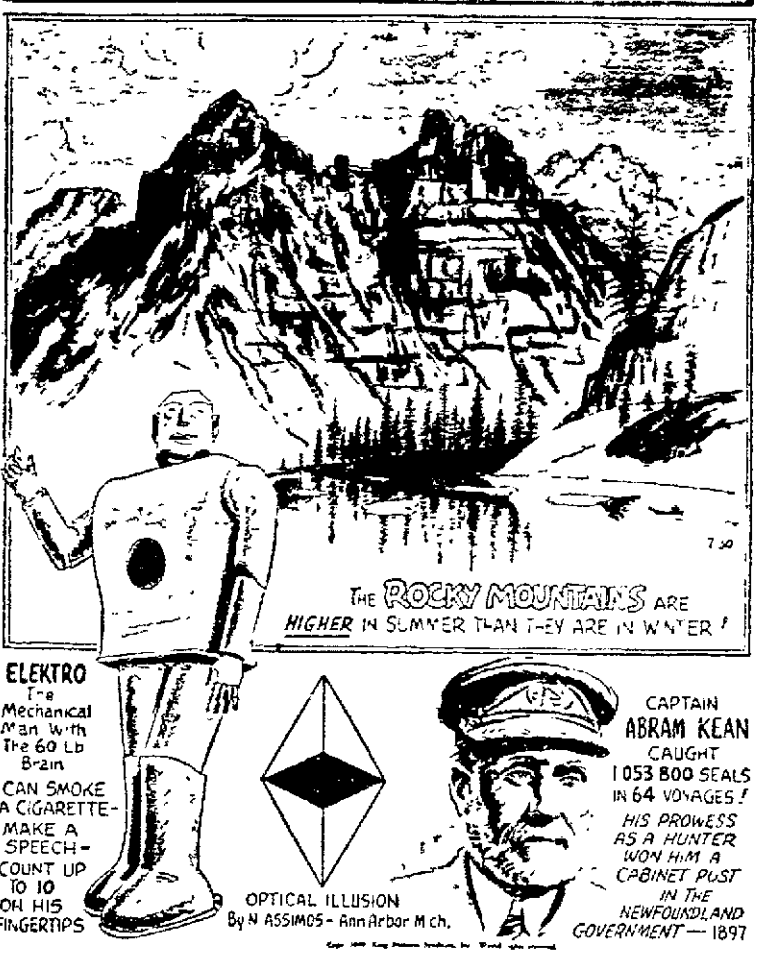

The men were sprayed with splintered glass as Miss Doig fired two shots through a rear window, but none was injured seriously. She later left the apartment peacefully.

When the bullets were flying, one of the movers, Abe Kaplan, 55, of Brooklyn, grabbed his bleeding neck, thinking he was shot.

He was taken to Bellevue hospital and found only to have been cut by the flying glass. He returned to the scene.

Miss Doig and her mother were ejected by police into the street and taken to Bellevue hospital.

Six Cities Fight Phone Rate Boost

Carry Battle To Supreme Court

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Six major Ohio cities appealed to the Ohio Supreme Court today against the decision of the Public Utilities commission granting increases to the Ohio Bell Telephone company.

The cities were Cleveland, Toledo, Akron, Dayton, Canton, and Columbus.

They also appealed against a commission action which overruled their petitions for a rehearing and said they came to the Supreme Court because both the order of last March 28 and the overruling "were unlawful and unreasonable."

The cities claim that the increased rate required Ohio telephone subscribers "to pay approximately eight per cent on invested capital whereas Bell system telephone subscribers in a number of other states are pay approximately six per cent on invested capital."

They also claimed the rates prior to the increase "were just and reasonable and yielded a fair return on the investment."

In addition the cities held there were eleven other errors in the commission's decision. These concerned the commission's computations on Ohio Bell's property valuation, working capital, depreciation allotments, operating expenses and allotments.

Aussies Need One More Win

WILMINGTON, Del. — (INS) — Captain John Bromwich and young Frank Sedgman took to the courts a decided favorite today to win the American zone Davis cup finals for Australia.

Bromwich, 30 and Sedgman, 21, who won the Wimbledon two-some crown in 1948, oppose Mexico's Vega brothers, Rolando and Armando, in doubles at Wilmington Country club.

A victory would give the Australians the third point necessary to gain the zone triumph and the right to meet Italy, European zone victor, in the inter-zone final at Rye, N. Y., on Aug. 12 - 13 - 14.

Australia swept the first two singles matches from Mexico yesterday when Sedgman won over Armando Vega, 12-10, 4-6, 6-4.

1-6, 6-3, and Bromwich brushed aside Rolando Vega, 6-0, 6-2, 6-1.

Swank Hurls Two Hitter At Taverns

Shelly Swank, Penn Auto's second - baseman - turned - pitcher, latched the third consecutive game on his string of pitching victories last night as he tossed a 6-1 defeat at T. and E. Tavern at Blue Goose park.

The game evened the series between the two at one game each and made another game necessary if they are to decide the city championship. T. and E. defeated the Mansfield Hawks two weeks ago the Taverns blasted Penn Auto, 8-4.

Swank blanked the Tavern nine with only two hits yesterday and set 11 men down on strikes. He issued only one free ticket.

The Autos took the lead in the first inning when Bob Finney got the first of three hits to drive in Dick Poth who had walked. T. and E. tied the count in its half of the second when Joe Sivak was hit by a pitched ball, Warren Hammett erred on Joe Miller's grounder and Joe Atton drove in Sivak with a single to center.

Penn took the lead for keeps in the third. Finney, Hammett, Don Hardy, and Swank hit successive singles and scored two runs and an error by T. and E. third baseman Rich Snively let two more in.

The Autos play their final Sunday home game of the season tomorrow when they entertain Lorain National at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday, Penn travels to Lexington.

Jack Hammett or Don Hardy will do the pitching tomorrow. Lorain is reportedly one of the better teams to play here this year, being loaded with college boys.

Linster, Salter Clip Par Score At Country Club

Pete Linster and the Veteran Vic Salter set the pace in the Westbrook Friday night league yesterday with a pair of one-under-par 35 scores. Al Hager was one stroke behind with an even-par 36.

Linster's 35 beat Dale Rose's 39 but the other three Fresh Meadows men won their matches and took medal honors to keep their team in the lead. Fresh Meadows had 29 points to 27 for Interlachen and Olympia Fields.

Fishing was rated good at Pleasant Hill and only fair at Charles Mill. Fishermen at Pleasant Hill averaged 1.3 fish per hour and .90 at Charles Mill. The Charles Mill take was 63 percent bluegills, 29 percent carp and the rest bass and catfish.

Prospects for next week at Charles Mill are about the same with live bait recommended.

Clock Umpires St. Louis-Brooklyn Games

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

Hail the clock — new chief umpire in the national league.

With two consecutive Brooklyn-St. Louis games called a tie by the time keeper, the man with the watch is becoming more important than the players.

Curfew struck at 1:10 a. m. (EST) today at Sportsman's park with the Dodgers and Cards locked in a 2-3 tie at the end of nine innings. National league rules say they must start a new inning of a night game at 12:50 a. m. (local time) so extra innings were out of the question. A heavy rain delayed the start.

Brooklyn almost missed a chance to tie the score for they barely completed the eighth inning, with St. Louis holding a 3-2 edge, at 12:47 a. m. St. Louis time.

As it was, the Dodgers managed to push over a run in the ninth on a walk to Roy Campanella, a pinch single by Marv Rackley and an outfield fly by Pete Wee Rees that scored Eddie Miksis, running for Campanella.

It was touch and go at the plate on Miksis who just made it from third after Chuck Diering made a shoestring catch of Reese's liner. Catcher Del Rice dropped Diering's peg as Miksis slid home with the tying run but no error was charged.

Howie Pollet, trying for his 4th win, had a shutout 3-0 at the end of seven innings with Nippy Jones and Marty Marion driving in the runs. A walk and successive singles by Carl Furut, Jackie Robinson and Gil Hodges gave the Dodgers two in the eighth. Ted Wilks came in to strike out pinch hitter Gene Hermanski to end the rally.

Earlier this week on Monday the Dodgers and Cards played a 4-4 tie at Brooklyn when they stopped the game under an agreement that no inning should start after 3:00 p. m. (EST) to let the teams catch a train to the west.

St. Louis remains a game and

Sons of Herman Softball Club Bops Jewelers, 6-1

The up-and-coming Sons of Herman softball team knocked Todd's Jewelry out of the undefeated bracket in the American softball league with a decisive 6-1 victory yesterday at Prospect park.

Dick Kanza handcuffed Todd's with two hits while his mates were getting five off Slub Winebrenner. The Hermans took advantage of some sloppy fielding by the Jewelers to rack up five runs in the first inning.

Even a triple play pulled by the Jewelers failed to win for them. With two Sons of Herman men on, Hammer lined to Daugherty who stepped on second for two out and threw to Ted Bush at first for the third.

It was the first defeat for Todd's in three second half games and the second win for Herman in the same number.

In the other American league game, Ronnie Hunt of Veterans of Foreign Wars put on a one man show to defeat Isaly Dairy, 8-2. Hunt allowed but one safe hit and poled two home runs himself for a perfect night at bat. He struck out six and walked three.

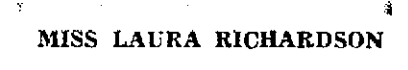

Yarmon had three singles in four trips for the VFW.
